Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

For a week preceding the opening of the big game hunting season, outfits of hunters both large and small, were trekking into the hills west of Didsbury and Olds. It seems that a large proportion of them were intent on shooting something, regardless of size, age and sex. Some at least, fail to read or completely ignore the very definite instructions contained on the licences they purchase.

Many and varied are the stories that come back with the returning hunters. From some you get a big kick and a laugh. Other stories hold a real sporting interest but must be regarded with some skepticism. Frankly, a lot of them are beyond belief — if you know what I mean.

Usually, though, it is the true stories that have no humor, and are very often tragic. Some of them are fraught with the greatest concern to all sportsmen, everywhere. Here is a story, supposedly true, fantastic though it may seem. A young hunter, out perhaps for the first time and probably as thrilled and excited as a big game hunter can be, was reported to have seen a big bull moose at which he aimed and fired. The bull, however, kept on traveling, and he fired again. Still the bull kept on, and though smaller in the rifle sights now—due to the distance or so he thought — the young hunter pressed the trigger a third time. This time the animal dropped and the youthful nimrod dashed up for the final death blow, not only a dead bull moose but also to his surprise the hunter found a dead cow and a dead calf. Long distance shooting alone might lend credence to this incident, but I personally do not know how anyone could be such a darned good shot. This story, however, is supposed to be true, and if so, where can we find an excuse for a dead cow and calf.

The following report, only too true I'm afraid, brings home forcibly, the tragedies being enacted among our wildlife; and incidentally, this incident is the keynote and main reason for our vanishing herds of wild game. An official of the Fish and Game Department told me and two companions that on the first day of the current season, he was making a tour of a certain area, and early in the day had seen a cow and calf moose in a particular spot. Shortly after seeing them he heard several shots coming from their general direction but since his business was urgent, he did not return at once, but made a mental note to investigate on his return to headquarters. Now here lies our tragedy with its callous and criminal implications! In the vicinity of the spot on which the cow and calf moose had been seen earlier, this same game official found a cow moose mortally wounded but still alive and suffering lying close to its mercifully dead calf. The cow had part of its lower jaw shot away, a bullet in its shoulder, another in its rump. Both animals were victims of the sordid bloodlust of some yellow-livered coyote, posing as a sportsman, too cowardly to finish the job he started.

Mr. Editor, I hope the person responsible for such an act will be discovered and prosecuted and his character, along with his name, be publicised and branded for what it is. This is not a vindictive wish. All right thinking people realize he has it coming to him. There have been many such instances as this in the past, but none more evil and dirty and inhuman than the above. We can only assume that the perpetrator of this evil deed, finding what he had done and fearful of the consequences, fled in panic from the scene of his guilt. Thank Heaven the department now with the co-operation of the RCMP have ways and means of establishing proof of responsibility, and in the particular case mentioned have every hope of apprehending the culprit.

REAL JOB FOR THE SENATE

There is a real job for the Senate, says The Financial Post. It should scrutinize all government legislation, and increase its committee work. It should be allowed to have a mind of its own, and have its voice recognized as being informed, thoughtful and at least a lot less partisan than the Commons.

But before this is possible, the appointments should be made representatively Canadian.

To those who love the sight of wild game a week in the hills is a wonderful experience. It is hard work if you make hunting a job, but you love it the same. Even though you come home empty-handed, you are happy — and your heart is full.

Through The Study Window

(By Rev. C. C. Armstrong)

We have been invited to attend the first of a series of parent-teacher conferences. Parents of children in grades three and four will have an opportunity to meet with the teachers and discuss with them the progress their child is making. We urge all parents in this group to attend.

This seems an excellent plan, in view of the inadequacy of report cards. When I went to school, reports were marked on a numerical basis, and a pass mark was fifty. If you were a bright student, you scolded down your efforts, so as not to overdo things. If you were a bit slow, you sighed with relief if you reached the 50 per cent mark.

Eventually teachers wearied of trying to decide whether Johnny or Mary had the highest mark, and substituted letters for numbers. It could represent Honors, Honest or "Hallelujah." A could mean Admirable or Accidental, in case he did better than he expected. B stands for Bad or Better, C for Conscious, Careless or Cute (for girls). It was all delightfully vague, but a rather hazy system of marking cannot be of much real value to parents.

Then the change of names baffles the unsuspecting parent. History and geography have become "Social Studies." In my day "Social" was suggestive of box socials and church entertainments. I have had to learn that Social Studies has nothing to do with "Wink" or "Spin the Plate" or "Post Office."

Up to now, the study has had no window opening directly on the school grounds. Some may think this is a good thing, and argue that church and state should be separate; that teachers and parents have their own distinctive office, and never the twain should meet. The relationship between the churches and the public schools has not always been too friendly. The parent-teacher conference has nothing to do with religion directly, is not concerned with religious education in the schools. But all parents aware of Christian responsibility should realize that here is an opportunity to co-operate with teachers towards a better understanding of the child, and in finding more effective ways of helping him.

Instead of a vague report meaning that "Little Tornado is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances," one has a chance to see how he is developing his own native ability. Let us give this venture every support.

IMPORT BANN LIFTED ON SCOTTISH CATTLE

It has been announced by the Health of Animals Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, that Scottish cattle which have been in quarantine in Northern Ireland for a period of 60 days may now be imported into Canada direct from Northern Ireland ports. Such cattle are subject to a further 30-day period of detention in a Canadian quarantine station, subject to the regulations made under authority of the Animal Contagious Diseases Act.

This arrangement is effective as from Nov. 15, 1952.

Source of Ergot Infection: Ergot bodies bring about infection by germinating in the spring and sending up many slender stalks, terminating in tiny heads about the size of mustard seeds on which tiny spores are produced and in due time discharged to infect the flowers of grains and grasses. A secondary source of infection is from the "honey dew" stage which develops in the heads of grain after they are infected. Spores are produced which are spread by washing down the head, by contact of heads as they wave in the wind, and by insects as they travel from flower to flower.

The ergot bodies provide the means by which the fungus lives through the winter and so is carried from one crop year to the next. They either fall to the ground before the grain is taken off or are threshed with the grain. If a field is sown with infested grain the field is virtually seeded down with ergot organisms.

However, the ergot bodies will not cause infection unless they are at or near the surface of the soil. If plowed deep or seeded two or more inches below the surface, they may germinate but are not likely to succeed in pushing through the soil and spreading infection to flowering grains and grasses.

Anything that prolongs the flowering period the plants increases the chance of ergot development. This happens in several ways, e.g., by broadcast seeding, with consequent uneven germination, or sowing thinly.

HOTEL ASSOCIATION EXPANDS
SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

Expansion of the Alberta Hotel Association Scholarship program was formulated by the Advisory Board during a meeting held at Calgary recently. Details of the program were announced by A. G. Swinerton, of Fort Macleod, the association's president.

The 1953 scholarship will be distributed as follows: five each for the cities of Edmonton and Calgary, three in the Peace River District; 20 for northern Alberta; and 10 each for Central and southern Alberta zones totalling 33 awards.

Today there's a NEW revenue crop in Alberta

Without seeding, cultivating or crop rotating, hundreds of Alberta farmers are receiving revenue today from a new crop — the well head through which a vital stream of oil is being pumped into our economy.

To date, the oil industry has paid Alberta farmers millions of dollars for well locations, which occupy on the average only about four acres. Oil company payments to farmers for surface use in the Leduc field, for instance, average $1,340 the first year and $431 for each subsequent year for each well location. To the farmer who has four wells on a quarter section this represents an income of more than $37,000 during the life of the wells.

And even if a dry hole results, the farmer receives at least the first year's rental.

This is another illustration of how oil is bringing increased prosperity to Alberta.

M.V.B.C. NEWS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

All our friends will be most happy to know that workmen have begun on Mrs. Baber's room at the College. Up to the present there have been so many matters that required attention before the cold days of winter, and this inside work was left to the present. Financial aid is necessary if this room will be what it ought to be, but our good cook is worthy of any aid that friends may want to give.

Several groups of young people were busy in churches during the weekend. Two of them went as far as Acadia Valley and Edmonton. Now that winter has come long distance journeys may be somewhat curtailed. But then, we may have nice weather again.

Mrs. Vera Forrest is making her headquarters in the College this winter. We are always glad to see her return from some trip in the interests of Sunday School work. Then too, she takes one of the Religious Education classes occasionally which adds much to the interest of these courses.

Christmas is coming nearer each week. We already see signs of excitement around the school, and young people are thinking of the holidays ahead when they can again see their own folk. A number will be here during the vacation, however, and all of us must see to it that they do not get too lonesome.

On Monday night the Didsbury Choral Society had its "Get-together" in the school dining hall. Mr. Richardson is quite proud of his group, and they really will be putting on a good evening of singing in the spring. We are sorry there are a number who would like to attend but are unable to do so because of the practice on Monday nights.

Mr. Odlin Elkland of Edmonton has enrolled as a student at the college this winter. He is taking only a few subjects this term but expects to take the full course in the second semester.

The Radio "One Hundred Club" is increasing in numbers. Some 85 members are now enrolled. A number of persons have paid for complete broadcasts lately. If you haven't heard The Goods News Program Sunday at 7:15 a.m., be sure to do so next Sunday morning. You may want to join the club. It is worthwhile.

A special program will be heard over CKXL at 7:15 a.m. Sunday morning for the children in the Red Cross hospital. It is sponsored by the relatives of Willard Stauffer, who has been ill with polio in that hospital for some weeks.

JUNIOR RED CROSS SPONSORS BAZAAR AT WATER VALLEY

The teachers and pupils of the Water Valley school held a bazaar on November 15, in aid of the Junior Red Cross. The event was held in the school and was attended only by residents of the Water Valley district.

Program consisted of an essay and poem from school work, health plays and Junior Red Cross songs.

After the program an auction sale was held, most of the articles being sold being made by pupils of the senior room. This sale realized $31.25. Two grade eight boys were the auctioneers.

Junior room pupils made $8.22 from the sale of popcorn balls and articles in a grab box.

Kind friends donated $4 and the club was happy to send $13 to the Junior Red Cross Crippled Children's hospital.

After a tasty lunch both adults and children enjoyed dancing until midnight.

Those attending the McNeiss wedding at Three Hills on Nov. 16 were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Underhay, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Hughes and Miss Merle Siebert.

Mr. and Mrs. Schumaker, Gloria, Joyce and Beverly Thompson motored to Calgary Sunday to visit their sons. They were dinner guests with their son, Bill, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCulloch were Calgary business visitors a week ago Monday.

Fred Metz was a visitor at Rimby on Saturday.

Miss Jessie McCulloch and Stanley Schumaker were weekend visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Clendenan at Midnapore. On their way back they stopped off to see Mr. and Mrs. James Schumaker of Calgary.

WALTHER LEAGUE ENJOYS CURRENT TOPIC DISCUSSION

A very interesting and informative discussion on the first chapter of the current topic "Old Testament History," entitled "Old Testament Lands and People," formed the basis of the Walther League meeting at Redeemer Lutheran Church on Tuesday, Nov. 18.

Such interesting items were treated as the extent of the Holy Land, its surface, its river system, its climate, its varieties of soil and chief products. To acquire a complete picture of the extent of the ancient world, the chief centres of ancient civilization were also dealt with. In conclusion, everyone present was asked to draw a map of the Holy Land with its rivers and lakes and its topographical subdivisions.

Following the topic discussion various items of business were taken up. The league decided to order one dozen folding chairs for church use. The evening closed with lunch being served.

On Friday evening, November 21, the Walther League presented Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Fox with a set of breakfast dishes to commemorate their wedding anniversary.

DIVORCE WITH LIFE SENTENCE

The Financial Post asked a group of representative Canadians what they thought of a plan that marriage be automatically ended when one of the parties goes to prison or other institution for life.

There was a wide divergence of opinion.

While many favor making life confinement of one partner grounds for divorce for the other, most would not like to see divorce "automatic" in any such instance. In many such situations, some point out, both partners may well want the marriage to continue for a variety of reasons.

In addition, those who favor the change in our divorce laws think adequate steps should accompany it to prevent its abuse.

One respondent arguing that situation as in grounds for divorce, urges that it should be accompanied by "establishment of proper safeguards preventing improper investigation of confinement by a victim's spouse."

Some respondents flatly pointed out that the ceremony "all death do us part," means what it says, adds the Post.

Christmas Seals were first sold to fight tuberculosis in Denmark in 1904. Last year 29 countries held Christmas Seal Sales as a means of raising money to help prevent tuberculosis.
